Bu Marquerite Mooers Marshall.

"The modern child is the most neglected of human beings. He has the best food, the most comfortable home, quantities of playthings, everything that money can give him. But he hasn't the personal care, the personal comradeship, the personal guardianship of father and mother to help him face the most important questions of life. The father is so busy making money, the mother so busy spending it, that home life is no longer the fashion. Yet the first step in patriotic preparedness is to prepare a clean and virile generation to follow us." The warning comes from Cosmo Hamilton, dramatist, novelist, soldier and exponent of preparedness. Mr. Hamilton wrote "The Blindness of Virtue," one of the most widely discussed plays presented on the American stage. When the war came, as a loyal Englishman he went into the Royal Naval Air Corps. Put in charge of the air defenses, he brought down the first Zeppelin that flew over Lon-
